What is the Master Gardener Volunteer Program

Master Gardener Volunteers are trained by the University of Wisconsin-Madison Division of Extension to help people in the community better understand horticulture and their environment. This national program was introduced to Wisconsin in 1977. Today, the Master Gardener program is available in all 50 states and several countries.

What’s the Program Offer?

- The experience of learning and the knowledge from working hand-in-hand, communication from both organizations to remain current on state certification and local Master Gardener activities.
- Membership in both the Northeastern Wisconsin Master Gardeners Association and the Wisconsin State Master Gardener
- Helping others learn correct cultural methods so they can maintain their landscapes, gardens, and orchards.
- Tours to nurseries, greenhouses, and horticulture-related businesses
- Specialized horticulture training classes, participation in the spring plant sale, and opportunities to serve on a variety of Master Gardener committees and the board of directors.
